

was “a microcosm of a great deal of Hartman’s work AND his approach to work.” The paper will be Steve’s response to it.

Saturday, October 7

8:30-10:00 AM: “Extrapolations” by Dr. Leon Pomeroy, President, RSHI. Leon will examine the implications of empirical (axiological) value science, including the birth of “multi-polar science” as distinguished from historic “mono-polar science”; the integration of empirical axiological science with cognitive psychology; the promise of common ground for religions and law; and the foundation for a moral science initiative matching military and intelligence initiatives in the defense of civilizations.

10:30-Noon: “Consultants Panel” – all business and psychological consultants are invited to participate in this informal, interactive panel which will focus on each consultant’s individual learning experiences over the past year, new axiological applications, insights or innovations, and any other subject of value that consultants may wish to share with others.